1. [REDACTED] returned to me the claim which was submitted by [REDACTED] had claimed reimbursement for $350.73 for the shipment of household effects. Not long before he went overseas he inherited a considerable quantity of books and massive furniture, and he shipped it all to his overseas post. He felt that, since he had not been specifically warned, the Agency should pay the bill. Col. White told [REDACTED] that he had no authority to approve the claim, and that he wouldn't approve it even if he did have the authority. The file is being returned to [REDACTED]
